

Who should get immunized against pertussis (whooping cough)?

- 01 Infants, children and adolescents, according to the childhood immunization schedule in their province/territory.
- 02 Adults who have not previously been vaccinated, especially if they are going to be near small children.
- 03 Pregnant persons should be immunized against pertussis in every pregnancy. Immunization against pertussis during pregnancy is safe and helps reduce the risk of the disease in infants.

Talk to your doctor, nurse, pharmacist, or local public health office about getting the pertussis vaccine for you or your child.
